

Mood Board

I was having a difficult time deciding what I wanted to do. First, I started playing with CSS animation seeing if it led me in a direction and eventually decided to make a mood-board.

I found this image on google (couldn't find direct source) and I'd like to use flexbox to arrange vector images of records that will be links to another page.

Record Page(s)

Text about artist, song or record...
Maybe lyrics?

Maybe title, album, release date

These are the pages that I would like the record grid to link to. A page that is dedicated to a certain record or song. Initially, I had wanted to create a piano using js... realizing that that was ambitious but still wanted to use music as an influence I came up with this idea. I think linking sound in general might be easier than attempting to make a whole instrument with limited experience.

Back to Browse

The Back to Browse button will bring the user back to this page where they can select another.